Prior to joining the firm, Sheri handled a wide variety of cases involving Admiralty and Maritime claims in state and federal courts throughout Florida, as well as employment, civil rights, discrimination, and commercial litigation on behalf of Florida governmental agencies.

As a South Florida native, Sheri began her legal pursuit in high school by attending a Pre-Law and Public Affairs magnet program. Sheri continued her pursuit by earning her Bachelor of Science in Legal Studies at Nova Southeastern University in Fort Lauderdale. Shortly after graduating, Sheri went on to earn her J.D. from Nova Southeastern University's Shepard Broad Law Center.

Outside of the office, Sheri enjoys spending time with her husband and their three daughters. Together they spend time traveling to new cities and countries and acquainting themselves with other cultures and traditions.
